

Academic Writing: Exploring discipline-specific discourse features

Dr Kristin Blanpain & Dr An Laffut

Katholieke Universiteit Leuven

This Professional Development Course aims to raise awareness of the conventions of typical academic genres, with particular emphasis on research papers. Through hands-on practice, participants will be encouraged to make optimal use of their own discipline-specific literature for language learning purposes. The following areas will be covered:

- Research papers: structuring principles
- Tense usage in specific contexts
- Genre-related vocabulary acquisition.

Examples will be drawn from articles in the field of Educational Studies.

The seminar is aimed at non-native speakers of English, with limited experience of writing academic texts in English. Maximum number of participants per session: 20
